DAILY INFORMATION BULLETIN – SUPPLEMENT

ISSUED BY GOVERNMENT INFORMATION SERVICES
BEACONSFIELD HOUSE, HONG KONG. TEL: 5-233191

ADDRESS BY THE HONOURABLE CHIEF SECRETARY, SIR JACK CATER, KBE JP AT THE OPENING CEREMONY OF THE TANG SHIU KIN VICTORIA TECHNICAL SCHOOL ON THURSDAY SEPTEMBER 25, 1980

It is my very great pleasure to officiate at the opening ceremony of a school building which has come into existence through the generous donation of four million dollars from Sir Shiu-kin Tang, the well-known Hong Kong philanthropist whose name is associated with so many institutions which provide educational, medical and social services for the people of Hong Kong.

The Tang Shiu Kin Victoria Technical School is one of the oldest government schools to offer a technically-oriented education, and was established in 1932. At that time, it operated as a school of four classes and was known as the "Junior Technical College": it shared the same building with what was then called "The Technical College".

In 1957, the school was renamed Victoria Technical School when it moved into its premises at Wood Road. Gradually the school expanded and took over the building formerly occupied by the Jockey Club Government Primary School. In order to cope with further expansion, there was a need for it to find yet another new home in a building which could offer the full range of facilities required. Thanks to the generosity of Sir Shiu-kin, the school has now been provided with a modern building of 24 classrooms, 16 special rooms and a school hall which can accommodate 1 200 students.

/In line .....

In line with the 1978 White Paper on the Development of Senior Secondary and Tertiary Education, this school offers a curriculum which gives emphasis to practical and technical subjects such as Design and Technology, Art and Design, Home Economics and Commerce, but at the same time does not forget the more academic subjects, such as Chemistry, Physics and Mathematics, for students who may proceed to A-level and university education.

Hong Kong's economy is primarily dependent upon export-oriented manufacturing industries and the support of a wide range of service industries operating within a free port, free enterprise environment. These industries require technologists, technicians, craftsmen and skilled workers at all levels. It is therefore imperative for us to produce the skilled manpower we require in sufficient numbers to meet the needs of our industry which is becoming ever more sophisticated.

Whilst the onus rests on the universities, the Polytechnic and the technical institutes for the training of technologists, technicians and craftsmen, our secondary technical schools play a vital role in helping students to acquire the basic technical skills thus opening up for them the vista of a multitude of different careers in industry.

The completion of the Tang Shiu Kin Victoria Technical School has made it possible not only to provide better facilities for the existing technical school, but has also made the premises of the old Victoria Technical School available for use by the Technical Teachers' College and the Morrison Hill Technical Institute, thereby providing both these institutions with much-improved accommodation.

/On behalf .....

On behalf of the community may I express my gratitude to you, Sir Shiu-kin, for your generous donation. I would like also to thank all those who have been involved in the planning and construction work which has enabled this new school building to come into being.

It now gives me great pleasure to declare the Tang Shiu Kin Victoria Technical School open.
