The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the subject. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory of the differential equations of the second order. The author then proceeds to a detailed study of the particular case of the linear differential equation with constant coefficients. The method of variation of parameters is used to find the particular integral. The general solution is then obtained by adding the complementary function to the particular integral. The author concludes by showing that the method of variation of parameters is applicable to the non-linear differential equation of the second order.
