Clerk of Councils.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
24th May 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Emergency Regulations are intended to enable Government, where necessary, to take effective action against vocal incitements to violence and law-breaking, attempts to spread disaffection and to undermine the loyalty of the Police and the Public Service, and to stir up ill-will in the community. The regulations are concerned solely with what they call "inflammatory speech". But this collective term embraces all these forms of incitement and trouble-making.

2. If suppression of this form of incitement is to be effective it is necessary to confer wide powers on the Police to take action to search for and seize the equipment such as loudspeakers used for this purpose. The regulations will permit the Courts to rule on whether or not any speech was an "inflammatory speech" in the event of prosecutions being instituted.

3. The regulations impose criminal liability on all who are concerned with these incitements even in a passive or permissive manner. But this liability is not absolute in all cases, and where appropriate it is provided that it is a good defence for a person charged to show that he had taken all reasonable steps to prevent the commission of the offence.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
23rd May 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the order, but is intended to indicate its general purport).

This order imposes new restrictions on the height to which buildings may be erected in part of the Ma Tau Kok area of Kowloon. The new restrictions have become necessary in order to protect the operational integrity of the instrument landing system at Hong Kong Airport upon which the safety of aircraft depends.

2. Experience has shown that existing buildings in the areas in relation to which the new height restrictions are imposed which exceed the new prescribed heights have not materially affected the operational integrity of the instrument landing system. Accordingly, the order provides that the sites on which those buildings are erected may be re-developed with buildings no greater in height than the existing buildings. In one case, where plans for re-development have already been approved, the order permits a building to be erected to the height permitted under the Hong Kong Airport (Control of Obstructions) Order prior to the amendments effected by this order.

Clerk of Councils.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
6th June 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport).

The purpose of these regulations is to transfer to and confer upon the Commissioner for Transport (hereinafter referred to as the Commissioner) certain powers, functions and duties under the various regulations mentioned in the second column of the Schedule.

2. Item 1 in the Schedule makes the Commissioner the authority to approve time tables under the Ferries Regulations and makes the opinion of the Commissioner of the same force as that of the Director of Marine for the purposes of regulation 15(g) relating to any wilful delay in or any wilful failure of a ferry service. The item also amends regulation 53 so as to replace the Director of Marine by the Commissioner as the officer who may make representations to the Governor in Council on the adequacy of the ferry service.

3. The effect of the new definition of "Commissioner" inserted in the Road Traffic Ordinance by the Commissioner for Transport (Transfer of Powers) Ordinance 1967 is that the meaning of that term will be changed wherever it occurs in all subsidiary legislation under the former Ordinance. There are certain exceptional cases where it is proposed that the Commissioner of Police, instead of the Commissioner for Transport, should continue to act and special amendments for this purpose are contained in items 2 and 5. Under item 2 the Commissioner of Police will retain certain rights to remove and detain vehicles and under item 5 he will retain certain functions concerning the removal of vehicles. The other amendments made in those items and in the other items in the Schedule are in line with the amendments made by the Commissioner for Transport (Transfer of Powers) Ordinance 1967.

BUILDINGS ORDINANCE (APPLICATION TO THE NEW TERRITORIES) REGULATIONS 1967.

In exercise of the powers conferred by section 4 of the Buildings Ordinance (Application to the New Territories) Ordinance, the Governor in Council has made the following regulations—

1. These regulations may be cited as the Buildings Ordinance (Application to the New Territories) Regulations 1967, and shall come into operation on the 1st day of July 1967.

“plans” means plans prepared by the Director of Public Works and also means plans approved by the Director of Public Works and the District Commissioner or plans so approved as modified with the consent of the District Commissioner.

3. (1) Sections 4, 9, 14, 15, 16, 17, 21, 23, 24, 28 and 30 of the principal Ordinance and the regulations made under that Ordinance shall not apply to—

Revocation.
(Cap. 322, sub. leg.)

5. The Buildings Ordinance (Application to the New Territories) Regulations are revoked.

Clerk of Councils.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
13th June 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport).

Building works in the New Territories in respect of houses of certain limited dimensions are at present exempt from certain provisions of the Buildings Ordinance. It is desired to extend this exemption to all buildings of these dimensions, and such is the purpose of regulation 3(2)(b).

2. It is also desired to provide a similar exemption in respect of buildings of somewhat larger dimensions, provided such buildings conform to standard plans which are to apply in the New Territories. Regulation 3(2)(a) makes such provision.

3. The remainder of these regulations are virtually a re-enactment of current regulations which it has been found more convenient to revoke than to amend.

“to the Lotteries Fund.”.
5. Any prize in a lottery drawn prior to the commencement of the Government Lotteries (Amendment) Ordinance 1967 which has not been claimed prior to that date shall be paid into the Lotteries Fund as soon as practicable after that date, and if no claim for payment of that prize is made within two years after that date the same shall be forfeited to the Lotteries Fund. Transitional.

By Command,

Colonial Secretary.

13th June 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the rules, but is intended to indicate their general purport).

The main purpose of these rules is to make amendments to those rules in the Government Lotteries Rules which deal with the payment of prizes.

A new paragraph is added to rule 5 to make it clear that a ticket may win more than one prize.

Paragraph (b) of rule 7 is amended to extend the time within which a person may claim a prize from 6 months to 2 years.

As unclaimed prize money will remain a contingent liability on the Lotteries Fund until the expiration of two years from the date of publication in the Gazette of the results of the lottery, rule 8 is amended to provide that, at the expiration of the period, the prize money will be forfeited to the Lotteries Fund.

The proviso to rule 8, which gave a right to petition the Governor in Council for payment of a prize, is deleted, owing to the amendment to rule 7 giving an extended time within which to claim a prize.

Rule 5 of these rules is a transitional provision relating to unclaimed prize moneys in lotteries drawn prior to the commencement of the Government Lotteries (Amendment) Ordinance 1967. These moneys will be paid into the Lotteries Fund where they will remain a contingent liability on the Fund until the expiration of 2 years from the date of commencement of the Government Lotteries (Amendment) Ordinance 1967.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
23rd June 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These Regulations strengthen the law so as to enable the Government to combat intimidation more effectively. They take account of the diverse ways in which this insidious menace may manifest itself.

The Regulations introduce a much more comprehensive offence of intimidation (regulation 3) and a new offence (regulation 4) which is intended to discourage assemblies of persons, one or more of whom is behaving in an intimidating manner. An important aspect of the latter offence is that a crowd will constitute an intimidating assembly although only some of the participants are behaving in an intimidating manner. In addition, any person who forms part of the assembly will be guilty of an offence whether or not he is participating in the conduct which makes the assembly intimidating. This is intended to deter passive association with assemblies of this kind.

The Regulations also make it a criminal offence to take part in the direction or organization of intimidation or intimidating assemblies (regulations 5 and 6).

Regulations 2, 6 and 10(a) of these regulations delete provisions in the principal regulations which are no longer necessary because of more regular inspections of blasting sites.

Secondly, they impose more stringent safety requirements. Regulations 3, 4 and 10 make amendments to the principal regulations to ensure that more adequate precautions are taken to reduce the risk of damage or injury caused by explosives.

Regulation 7 which allows the Director to grant a licence for the manufacture of mixtures of ammonium nitrate and fuel oil on the site follows the law in the United Kingdom.

Possession of corrosive substance.

119C. Any person who without lawful authority or reasonable excuse has in his possession, custody or control any corrosive substance shall be guilty of an offence."

Clerk of Councils.

COUNCIL CHAMBER,
22nd July 1967.

Explanatory Note.

(This Note is not part of the regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport).

These regulations amend the Emergency (Principal) Regulations so as to strengthen the law in order to assist the Police Force in dealing with the current disturbances. Amongst other things, the new regulations take account of the weapons being used by the troublemakers—especially home-made weapons of all kinds, acid, "fish bombs" and other explosive or incendiary devices.

2. The regulations create three new offences.

(a) The new regulation 119A provides that a person who frequents or is found in any premises or place in which arms, ammunition, offensive weapons, explosives or corrosive substances (acid or alkaline) are found is guilty of an offence. Experience in recent police raids has shown that, unless it could be proved that weapons were in the physical possession of a particular person, it has not been possible to charge anybody with an offence in relation to the weapons found in the premises. Special defences are provided so that a person whose presence in any premises or place is innocent will not be guilty of this offence.

(b) The new regulation 119B provides that a person who is found in premises access to which has been denied to police officers so that a forcible entry is necessary will be guilty of an offence. It is the duty of persons in premises which police officers are empowered to search to permit them access. This regulation is designed to enforce that duty and to reduce the danger to which police officers are exposed where their entrance to premises is violently obstructed.

(c) Recently, large quantities of corrosive substances intended for offensive purposes have been uncovered in police raids. The new regulation 119C increases the penalty for being in unlawful possession of such substances.

3. The new regulation 41 widens considerably the powers of police officers to enter premises to search for and seize arms, ammunitions, explosives and other weapons and extends to anything which is intended or adapted or which can be adapted for an unlawful purpose. It is essential in the public interest that the Police Force should have at its disposal such powers as are necessary to enable it to root out and seize anything which is capable of being used for violent attacks on members of the public or on the forces whose responsibility it is to maintain law and order.

4. The new regulation 100A is added to the principal regulations so as to confer expressly power to use force in the exercise of the various powers conferred by the principal regulations. Associated with this, the opportunity is taken to spell out in the legislation the common law rule with respect to the degree of force which may be used (new regulation 100B(1)), and immunity from liability in civil or criminal proceedings is conferred where force is used in accordance with these provisions (new regulation 100B(2)).

5. Regulations 4 and 5 of these regulations amend regulations 87 and 88 of the principal regulations (the latter regulation has recently been brought into operation and the former regulation may be brought into force in the near future) so as to extend their operation to all offences under emergency regulations.

6. Regulation 118 of the principal regulations is amended so as to make it an offence for any person to consort with another person who is in possession of an offensive weapon in circumstances which raise a reasonable presumption that such person intends to or is about to act with such other person in a manner prejudicial to the public interest. Hitherto, this regulation has extended only to persons in possession of arms, ammunition or explosives.

7. Regulation 119 of the principal regulations, which has hitherto extended only to arms, ammunition and explosives, is similarly amended so as to require any person who knows that another person is in possession of an offensive weapon to report the same to a police officer.

8. The new and revised definitions of "corrosive substance", "explosive substance" and "offensive weapon" inserted in regulation 2 of the principal regulations reflect the type of weapons now being used by the troublemakers.
